Woman is indicted for embezzling more than $67,000

President said she was longtime employee with a good reputation

By Shelley Spillman

Melanie Aitken, 47, of Versailles, who was the former treasurer of Home at Last Inc., a 501(c)3 non-profit animal rescue in Lawrenceburg, was charged with three counts of theft by unlawful taking of more than $10,000 by the Anderson County Grand Jury Tues., April 8.

According to Detective Bryan Taylor of the Anderson County Sheriff's Office, the investigation was prompted by an embezzlement complaint.

The investigation of Aitken's financial statements examined 1,500 transactions through the Home at Last Inc. checking account over the past 3 years, revealing a total of more than $69,000 that had allegedly been embezzled.

Margie Gill, president of Home At Last Inc., brought checking account statements that didn't seem right to her to the sheriff's office in September.

Taylor said the statements revealed several seemingly personal charges for gas, grocery shopping and company checks that Aitken endorsed to herself.

Taylor said they subpoenaed Aitken's banking financial records. The investigation revealed that Aitken had allegedly received a debit card under the Home at Last Inc. checking account and funneled funds to her PayPal and eBay account.

"Once we formed all the transactions in an excel spreadsheet, it was pretty obvious what was going on," Taylor said. "The eBay and PayPal accounts are what really lead to a treasure trove of evidence."

Circuit court documents obtained by The Anderson News showed that Aitken was indicted on similar charges in Woodford County in July 2012.

Aitken was found guilty on the charge of theft by unlawful taking in the amount of around $14,561.90 from Two Chicks and Company, a previous employer.

Aitken was put on probation for 5 years and mandated to pay $25,000 in restitution.

Woodford County Circuit Court documents showed that Aitken had been faithfully paying her monthly restitution installment since Aug. 6, 2012.

The Kenneth Perry home in Avenstoke was heavily damaged during the Super Outbreak of tornadoes in April 1974. In this file photo from the April 11, 1974 issue of The Anderson News, Magistrate Gilbert Perry, right, talked about the damage to his brother's home with Tommy Sims Jr.

It was called the Super Outbreak. For 24 hours, tornadoes plowed through the U.S. and a portion of Canada on April 3 and 4 in 1974.

At the time, it was the largest outbreak ever with 148 confirmed tornadoes in 13 states and the province of Ontario. The outbreak from April 25 through 28 in 2011 topped that but the 1974 storm is still considered the most violent with 30 F4 and F5 tornadoes reported.

Damages were in excess of $600 million and the death toll hit 319 as a 2,600-mile swath was cut through the Midwest and parts of the East and South.

The community of Avenstoke was hardest hit in Anderson County. According to the April 11, 1974 issue of The Anderson News, homes and barns were leveled, trailer homes were flipped, power lines were torn down and trees were uprooted, essentially, leveling

Man charged in landlord's beating death pleads guilty

WLEX TV Channel 18

The man charged in the beating death of an Anderson County woman has entered a guilty plea in the case. Forty-seven-year-old Terrence Allen Cram pleaded guilty to murder, tampering with physical evidence and fraudulent use of a credit card over a 6 month period Tuesday of last week.

Police say Cram beat 49-year-old Tena L. McNeely to death in January 2011 at their Anderson County home. McNeely was Cram's landlord at the time. Her family members say Cram lived in a room in McNeely's house for 5 years.

The coroner said McNeely died of blunt-force trauma to the head. She was the daughter of state Trooper James McNeely, who died in the line of duty during a flood rescue in Frankfort in 1972.

Gratitude for Growers

77-year-old raises hens and has no plans to retire

Gratitude for Growers is a series about growers, farmers and crafters of the Anderson County Farmers Market. The stories will celebrate farmers market vendors and allow readers to have a greater appreciation of the local faces who produce.

By Shelley Spillman

Jimmy Disponett, 77, has lived his entire life farming in Anderson County, and there is no place he'd rather call home.

He attempted to move to Florida and enjoy retirement but wasn't all that comfortable with it. He loved the satisfaction he got from working his land and putting in an honest day's work.

After 3 years in Florida, he moved back to Kentucky.

"I love the country," said Disponett with a smile. "I can still outwork any 20-year-old."

Disponett brings his organic, cage free eggs to sell at the Anderson County Farmers Market. He's only being contributing to the farmers market for around 4 years but he has lifelong experience of this type of work with his father and grandfather. Both instilled the strong work ethic in Disponett that has yet to wane.

He has 30 hens and two roosters. He has hens in three different varieties

- Australorp, a large breed with black feathers, Rhode Island Red, which has dark rust-colored feathers, and an ISA Brown, which is a crossbreed of Rhode Island Red roosters and Rhode Island White hens, providing light caramel colored feathers.

Partner in Bluegrass Pipeline suspends investment plans

Too few commitments cited as reason

By Marcus Green
WDRB.com

An energy company developing the proposed Bluegrass Pipeline announced Monday that it is suspending its investment in the controversial venture due to a lack of buyers for the project's natural gas liquids.

The Williams Cos. of Tulsa, Okla., said in a statement that an "insufficient level of firm customer commitments" led to the move.

A posting on the project's Web site said the pipeline is not "dead." Asked when work will resume, Williams spokesman Tom Droege said in an e-mail, "We'd be able to talk about a timeline forward once the necessary customer commitments are made."

He declined to provide additional details.

A spokeswoman for Houston-based Boardwalk Pipeline Partners L.P., the project's other partner, did not immediately return a phone call Monday.

Hailed by developers as a boon for the local economy and the nation's energy independence, the pipeline also has galvanized critics who worry that the project could trample on landowners' rights and contaminate soil and groundwater in the event of a leak.

Tim Joice, water policy director of the Kentucky Waterways Alliance, said there is "tentative optimism" after Williams' decision to halt the project.

"Sometimes industry will 'suspend' operations or 'suspend' the future of a project but, in reality, behind the scenes, they'll still be working on it," he said. "This is a

Williams' Full Statement

Williams (NYSE: WMB) has suspended capital investments in the Bluegrass Pipeline, a proposed natural-gas-liquids project, primarily in response to an insufficient level of firm customer commitments. The company continues to engage in discussions with potential customers regarding the scale and timing of demand for services and the required firm contractual commitments that would support any future capital investments.

The project, in which Williams is a joint-venture partner, is designed to connect natural gas liquids produced in the Marcellus-Utica areas in the U.S. Northeast with domestic and export markets in the U.S. Gulf Coast. The Bluegrass Pipeline represents a strong long-term solution in the marketplace.

Williams has a large, diverse portfolio of attractive risk-return growth opportunities. It continues to exercise capital discipline as it pursues projects that garner solid market support, strengthen its cash-flow growth and deliver advantaged connections between large supply areas and growing demand centers.

billion-dollar project for them and, if they can get it moving again, they will."

The pipeline would carry natural gas liquids - naturally occurring substances found in natural gas - for use in plastics, automotive fuels and other products. They are classified as hazardous materials under federal rules.

Kentucky, where plans call for roughly 275 miles of new or repurposed line, would be the midpoint of a route stretching from natural gas fields in the northeast to the Gulf Coast. The pipeline has secured about two-thirds of the easements needed for the Kentucky route, Droege said.

The project has already made some "upfront, nonrefundable" payments to property owners who agreed to let the pipeline pass through their land and the companies indicated that any additional payments would be made only if Williams and Boardwalk Partners exercise their option for the land within

Anderson native is living a life dream singing gospel music

Dickerson releases
first solo CD

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Jeremy Dickerson is simply living a dream.

The Anderson County native always knew he wanted to sing southern gospel music. Now, he's making his living doing what he loves.

"When I was growing up, that is all we listened to at home," Dickerson said. "My dad (Denny Dickerson) was well established singing gospel music in the area. My mom (Kathy Wade) has been singing in the area a long time. I knew I would like to try it."

Dickerson has been traveling full-time with the Forgiven Trio of Lawrenceburg, Ind., for nearly 2 years and has just released his first solo CD, "Blessed."

The CD features traditional favorites, such as "The Old Gospel Ship," and some newer southern gospel classics, such as Gold City's "When I get carried away."

Dickerson, a member of the Anderson County

Marching Bearcats while in high school, now lives in Somerset with his wife, the former Ashley Hanks. They moved to "southern Kentucky when Dickerson went into gospel music and sang with another group.

His ties to Lawrenceburg still run deep. His mother and most of his extended family still live in Anderson County and he sang at Sand Spring Baptist Church's Christmas Homecoming program in December.

With Forgiven Trio, Dickerson has made several stops in Anderson and surrounding counties.

It's not an easy life.

"When we travel, we are usually gone about two weeks then home for a week," Dickerson said.

Last week, Dickerson said the group was getting ready for a trip to California. They recently toured extensively in Florida.

Dickerson said that whether he is at home for a special engagement, singing in a church or doing any of the various appearances with the group, the message is paramount.

"You have to convey the message of Jesus Christ," he said. "We want people to understand that message."

Dickerson had sung with some local and regional groups but got his break when he landed with Forgiven, a group that has been together for 28 years. Dickerson admits to losing count of how many states he has been in with the group but estimates it to be 15-20. He says that the group will travel extensively in Florida for nearly 3 months after Jan. 1.

"About 90-95 percent of the time, we sing in churches," he said. "In Florida, we do a lot of senior adult centers. We will sing for 20-30 people in a church to 1,500-2,000 in a church."

Dickerson says the group also got to sing at the National Quartet Convention in Louisville this year and will be on the program with the event moves to Pigeon Forge, Tenn., next year.

He's also working on his first solo album, to be released in 2014.

The former trumpet player in the Anderson County High School band is getting used to sleeping in a tour bus or an RV pulling a trailer.

"Walmart is our best friend," he said, laughing. "We never stay in a hotel but usually will pull into a Walmart parking lot to sleep. Most are OK with it. We spend enough money there. They ought to be."

Being out on the road also requires an agreeable family situation.

"It takes a very supportive wife," he said. "Ashley doesn't like being alone but she understands it."

Dickerson, however, loves to be sharing the message he loves.

"You are in ministry and you have to keep that first," he said. "You never know what song people hear will lift their spirits. You never know many seeds you have planted."

While Dickerson says he's honored to sing either with his group or as a soloist, he says his performance is not about him.

"If I get up there and sing because I think I am a good singer, I am not doing what I am called to be doing," he said. "If I make the message clear, I have done my job."

Disponett said that his brown, cage free eggs are about as organic as they come. The hens roam on five acres of wooded area and eat native grass and plants.

"This way they are getting nutrients the way God intended," said Disponett. "That's the difference in country eggs."

He explained the difference between brown and white eggs.

"Brown eggs have the most protein and a rich taste. They better for baking, too," he said.

Disponett has passed down his farming know how to his son, William Disponett, a successor to the family traditions.

Thanks to his dad, William Disponett said he knows how to hunt, fish, trap, build and generally how to survive off the land.

Building is another family trait. Disponett and his brother Dave are well-known contractors in the area who have built many structures in Lawrenceburg.

When Jimmy Disponett isn't building, staining decks or tending to his hens, he's preparing for Sunday service at Eagle Ridge Church in Lawrenceburg. He has been a preacher there for more than a year.

The devout Christian can quote scripture from the top of his head with ease. He said he often likes to start his sermons with attention grabbing facts. Some of the facts he learned from a book of old Kentucky laws.

One of his favorites is in 1911 when it was illegal to do any work on Sunday. If anyone was found chopping wood or doing any other type of work, that individual could be fined five dollars.

"It's amazing how in my years life has changed so much," he said.

Disponett can recall in his youth being mindful of not doing work on Sundays. His family would have a nice lunch after church that was typically prepared the night before.

He still believes it's important to keep the Sabbath holy.

Though some things change, pride in work and love of God are two constants for Disponett.

The light-hearted man asked his son a question while packaging eggs at the farmers market recently.

"What do you think came first the chicken or the egg," he said. "I think it was the chicken because God had to make the chicken first to lay the egg."

In last week's issue, a Wild Turkey product - American Honey - was incorrectly called Golden Honey in a story about Wild Turkey Master Distiller Jimmy Russell's 60th Anniversary at the local distillery.

American Honey was actually called Wild Turkey Honey Liqueur when it was introduced in 1978. It was re-packaged and renamed American Honey in 2006.

In a handwritten statement obtained by LEX 18, Cram says he only killed McNeely because she begged him to do so.

Cram claims in the four-page letter he found McNeely at the bottom of the stairs after a bad fall that day. Cram said he was going to call 911 when "she yelled no"

"She said she couldn't move her left leg and the rest of her body was wracked in pain," he wrote. "Please, please kill me! I can't and won't live like this," she said, according to his statement.

In graphic details, Cram described how he hit her repeatedly until she stopped moving.

"I had to stop her pain," he wrote.

State Police say Cram used her credit cards in several different states after her death. He was arrested in Arizona in June 2011 after officers received a tip that he was living in Goodyear, Ariz., and after he filled out an employment application, where a background check revealed he was wanted for murder. He was extradited to Kentucky to stand trial.

Cram's sentencing date is scheduled for June 4.

Chamber political forum is tomorrow

The Anderson County Chamber of Commerce will host a political forum for candidates running in the May primary election tomorrow at Anderson County High School at 6:30 p.m.

It's not a debate. Content of each candidate's speech will be directed to businesses and citizens of Anderson County. All candidates will be given a maximum of 4 minutes to speak.

Janie got a gun... and can pack that sucker most places in Georgia

I'll keep this short and sweet since we had so many great letters from our readers this week.

I'm riding the fence so tightly that I'm getting splinters in my nether region.

Georgia Gov. Nathan Deal has signed the Safe Carry Protection Act of 2014, or the "guns everywhere bill," depending on your views.

Is this bad legislation? I'm truly not sure. Essentially, it tells

Georgia residents where they can carry weapons, including provisions that let residents who have concealed carry permits to take guns into some bars, churches, school zones, government buildings and certain parts of airports.

Supporters say it's a gun, and perhaps a protection, rights issue.

Foes say it will put more guns in the hands of criminals. Something tells me they already have them. Or can get them when they want them.

I'm leaning towards approval of Act. Might change my mind tomorrow.

What do you think? Send us a letter or sound off on our Facebook page.

Magistrates should speak to constituents regularly

The publisher of The Anderson News says, "Vote or Keep Your Mouth Shut." OK, a bit in harsh, but I agree with the sentiment. I'll vote but, before we get to Election Day, I'd like to challenge all those running for office. I live in the county so that's my focus but it applies in the city as well.

What have you done in the last 4 years to hear the opinions and concerns of those you represent? Have you reached out in your district—held open meetings? Sent communications of any type on the issues coming up for the Fiscal Court? Knocked on doors? Made phone calls?

Anderson County is a pretty small place. I can't think of a single reason why every single resident would not have been contacted by their magistrate.

This is a hot issue for me right now. For the last 4 years, as a fairly new resident here, I thought one magistrate represented my area. I came to find out today that I have been wrong. It's another one. And I only came to realize this because I saw his signs down the street. Wow! Four years of mistaken identity, and I guess he didn't make it a priority to make sure I knew. But now that it's election time... well, you get the idea.

I agree with Adella Curtsinger's letter to the editor last week. Some of our city and county representatives may need to be replaced with a different set of elected officials. But not necessarily younger.

One-on-one conversations are great but how do you reach more people? Town hall meetings, email newsletters and posts on social media are the way of 2014. Is your magistrate using any of these methods?

I'll bet each one of them has a friendly constituent with a big backyard, fitting for a regular forum with local residents. Facebook and email newsletters do not require any investment of dollars, only time and the ability to communicate.

And if a magistrate can't communicate to you, why do you think they would communicate for you?

Opinion piece did not fairly depict Family Court judge

I read with great interest the opinion piece in a recent issue regarding Family Court Judge John David Myles. The portrayal of Judge Myles could not be further from my experience with him and his Court.

Judge Myles was always prepared, professional and fair to all who appeared before him. He is a passionate advocate for children, education and families.

Above all, Judge Myles is a man of unwavering moral character and commitment to fairness for all.

Judges in any court must hear all sides of a case and maintain fairness for all parties involved. The same applies in Family Court. However, when you are dealing with a child in crisis, a custody matter or the dissolution of a marriage, intense emotions can weigh heavily on a courtroom. It is easy, even for a judge, to occasionally get caught up in the emotion.

Some 1,400 cases are filed in Judge Myles' court every year. It is a rare day when only half of those appearing are disappointed with the decision of the Court, some extremely so.

None of us as parents want others making decisions that affect our children and their well-being. However, when we make choices that affect our children, it may well be that someone else has to be involved. And in this day and age, when parents cannot make decisions with maturity and civility, possibly through no fault of their own, Family Court is there for mediation.

Readers should understand that judges are not supposed to speak to litigants outside the Court or without the presence of the opposing side. They are not supposed to receive correspondence from one side in a case which has not been filed in the court record and served on the opposing side.

As for Judge Myles' record, all his civil cases are matters of public record available at the Circuit Clerk's office and the very few of his cases that have been appealed are public record at the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court. Of those which have been appealed, nearly all have been affirmed.

Kathy Howser Nichols
Shelbyville, Ky.

Wall column did not tell the whole story about a case

The opinion column of Rebecca Wall ("We need to judge this judge," My Word, Feb. 12) set forth her opinion of Judge John David Myles. Her divorce was filed in 2004. The court record of her case shows it was first settled in 2004, before Judge Myles was appointed and subsequently elected. Wall had several attorneys throughout the pendency of her case and all have apparently withdrawn. After the last attorney withdrew, Wall mediated her case and an agreement was reached.

The position of Family Court Judge is difficult and often thankless. Many cases are resolved with both parties leaving court unhappy, thinking they should have gotten more - more time with the kids, more support, less maintenance, more maintenance, more property or less property. You cannot cut one pie and divide it between two people who will both receive a whole pie. Wall's opinion piece illustrates this perfectly. She is unhappy with her results. Perhaps she shouldn't have agreed to a settlement in 2004 or a subsequent mediation agreement. In any event she did, and now she is unhappy.

I practice daily in the courts of Shelby, Spencer and Anderson Counties. I appear regularly before Judge Myles. I often litigate cases against other attorneys. If we are unhappy with the result, we know how to appeal. We also know that Judge Myles will not hold it against us if we disagree with his opinion and order.

We don't hate each other when we have clients with opposing positions. We don't hate the judge when he rules in favor of our opponent and against us. This is the process we follow and it is the process of justice. Family Court is the most difficult court for a judge because the stakes for the litigants are so high. We need fair judges and I believe Judge Myles is a fair judge.

Brian Glass should have his coaching job reinstated

When I read the news article concerning Superintendent Sheila Mitchell's improper transfer of former ACHS Principal Ronnie Fields that appeared on the front page of the March 12 edition of The Anderson News, I could not help but relate the mishandling of that situation with the current way in which the issue surrounding our high school softball head coach position is being handled. I could not help but have concern over the details the Office of Education Accountability's finding that Mitchell violated statutory transfer requirements related to job posting procedures.

I was particularly concerned by the degree to which Mitchell abdicates responsibility for the decision, stating that her actions were taken in reliance upon incorrect advice from Robert Chenowith, ACHS board attorney. I couldn't help but draw a parallel to how Mitchell is handling the situation with our former girls' softball coach, Brian Glass.

I've followed the effort by Glass to be reinstated as coach. It seems that at every step of the way, Glass's supporters have been told that reinstatement was not possible because Chenowith has advised Mitchell and board members that it is against the law. The violation of the law, as I see it, is that Brian Glass was not told by May 15 that he was being transferred.

It is clear from the report about Fields' transfer that Chenowith's interpretations of the law in this area are not always correct. Since that is the case, and if it is true that Mitchell and the board are so reliant upon Chenowith's opinions in shaping their course of action with Glass, don't we owe it to Glass and our girls' softball team to refrain from regarding his coaching position until the court has provided a definitive ruling on whether his transfer to the middle school team is required by law?

It seems clear that there is only a nepotism statute for teaching, which is why Glass is now teaching at the middle school. However, there is no nepotism statute under the Kentucky High School Athletic Association for coaching. The KHSAA makes all decisions related to Kentucky high school sports and it seems clear there is nothing illegal about Glass coaching.

This is evident as other schools have and will continue to do this. After reading John Halvach's article about Anthony Hatchell's son being hired as head baseball coach while he was principal, it became clear that this is not nepotism.

Lastly, time and tax dollars being spent on defending a position that is obviously legal should be a concern to the community. Every school has to operate under the same law. The fact that there are multiple schools doing this legally because there is no nepotism KHSAA statute for coaches speaks volumes. So I am asking, why is Brain Glass not back in as coach?

The government can't fix everything but God can

Each time this country has gone through an unimaginable ordeal, God has prepared has spiritually. Just as the Great Awakening readied us for the War for Independence, revival swept the land in 1858, preparing North and South for what was about to happen.

Following God's plan requires us to follow Jesus' Great Commandments: to love God with all our heart and mind and soul and being, and to love our neighbors as ourselves. If we would do that, God would bless us.

In my lifetime, the moral standards of our society have deteriorated at a staggering rate. The most frightening is that Christians are immune to the decay. Corruption in our government is blatant and people just shrug their shoulders saying things like "those people are our ruining our country." Can anything be done? I believe that the problems are past human solution.

With God, everything is possible. Christian's hearts need to turn to God in desperation and repentance seeking the face of our God. I believe that the only hope for America is a full scale, national revival. If you do not believe this, then you area acknowledging that you do not believe in Almighty God. Are we people of faith?

We cannot wait. In order for revival to spread from coast to coast, more than a remnant of us must take God's promise in 2 Chronicles 7:14 to heart. We must repent individually first, seek His face, and turn from our wicked ways. Only God can help us. The government cannot fix anything.

Yippee!

It's almost time to roll up the sleeves and get into that OK, who pushed the fast forward button on the calendar? Is anyone else amazed that tomorrow is May 1?

I can't complain. May is one of my favorite months because it marks the start of my engines! I love my Cub Cadet Lawn Tractor, my Echo Weed Eater and my Stihl Chain Saw.

I did have to buy a new battery for the tractor but 8 years on the last one was a pretty good run. There must have been a lot of people buying them as well because one place actually ran out of them.

Taking care of these engines is important, unless you want it to die, so you can buy a different one. My wallet won't let me do that.

I take my stuff in annually to get a once over from someone who knows what they're doing. Plus, I have my favorite "son in law" Justin who can fix and explain anything.

They didn't let girls take shop or auto mechanics when I was in high school so I learned to cook and make aprons. Big Whoop!

I have noticed a lot of gardens prepped and ready, as well as a few with plantings. If you just want to plant summer vegetables like tomatoes, squash, peppers and cukes, please join me in waiting to plant them outside until around Mother's Day, when all chances of frost are past us.

Things like broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage can take the cold and are planted outside in the Spring and, if you want, you can do them again in the Fall. You get fewer bug problems in the fall.

Broccoli should be harvested when the head is tight and dark green. You might have to rig up a little shade structure if it gets too hot too fast this month. If you start to see some tiny yellow flowers cover fast!

Cauliflower can get sunburnt. That white head can turn brown or look bronzed so cover it with its own leaves. I use wooden close pins to hold the leaves together over the head. When the head is large enough use a knife to slice it off the stem.

More than a few of you have been asking me what the summer will be like this year. Weather nut that I am, I've been researching every source I use to find that same answer. Nobody wants to say because there is a chance for an El Nino summer, which will bring some severe storms across the country this summer.

After this cool spring ends, it is going to be a beautiful summer, complete with high temperatures, high humidity and above normal rain.

No groans now! We froze our tails off this winter.

I've also heard a lot of comments about mature shrubs that look dead right now. This winter was tough on everything. Please give them until mid-May to show some signs of life, before you rip them out.

If it looks like some new growth is coming on by then, then prune them back and give them some fertilizer. They'll snap out of it.

Now, get outside and get into shape! We're the only ones that shouldn't get bigger in the summer. Just do yourself a favor and remember to plan on paper before you plant.

Think of how big things will get when full grown, then space accordingly. No sense of having to do all that work over again when things get crowded out.

Happy Growing!

Banning electronic cigarettes is a good first step

Electronic cigarettes have been in the news recently because Senate Bill 109 passed. This law bans the sale of all types of electronic cigarettes to minors regardless of the device using nicotine or not.

There is a strong correlation between the use of electronic cigarettes and smoking traditional cigarettes. Passing this bill was an important step in reducing the Kentucky smoking rate by 10 percent over the next 10 years.

Kentucky county health rankings made public in April 2014 indicate that Anderson County fared better than most on adult smoking rates.

According to the report, 19 percent of adults in Anderson County are smokers. The average adult smoking rate in Kentucky is 26 percent. Nationwide about 14 percent of adults smoke.

Electronic cigarettes were developed to address long-standing concerns about second hand smoke and provide a way for smokers to enjoy smoking in places that ban tobacco products. However, an unanticipated effect has been the increased calls to poison control centers.

The e-cigarettes are battery-powered devices that deliver nicotine, flavorings (such as fruit, mint and chocolate) and other chemicals via an inhaled aerosol. No therapeutic claims can be made by the manufacturers.

E-cigarettes are not currently regulated by the Food and Drug Administration but that might change soon.

There is a developing concern about the potential of e-cigarettes to cause acute nicotine toxicity.

Calls to poison control centers were analyzed from September 2010 through February 2014. Calls included concerns about the e-cigarette device itself or the nicotine liquid, which typically is contained in a cartridge that the user inserts into the e-cigarette. For the purpose of this review, any poison control center calls involving traditional tobacco cigarettes didn't include exposure to cigarette butts.

During the study review period, there were 2,405 e-cigarette calls to poison control centers and 16,248 cigarette exposure calls. The incident rate ranged from 1 call in September 2010 regarding e-cigarettes to 215 calls in February 2014. Cigarette exposure calls ranged from 301 to 512 calls per month and were more frequent in the summer months.

E-cigarette exposure calls to poison centers represented 41.7% of the combined total of e-cigarette/tobacco cigarette calls in February 2014. Cigarette exposures calls primarily involved children 5 years old and younger (94.9 percent).

Joan Martin
Columnist

E-cigarette exposures were most common among the same age groups (0-5 years old - 51.1%) and youth under age 20 (42 percent). E-cigarettes were more likely to involve inhalation, eye exposure, and skin exposure whereas tobacco cigarettes were almost always reported as ingestions (97.8 percent vs. 68.9 percent for e-cigarettes.)

An analysis of the 9,839 calls to poison control centers regarding adverse health effects of both electronic cigarettes and tobacco cigarettes, revealed that e-cigarette exposure calls were more likely to report adverse health effects (57.8 percent vs. 36 percent). The most common adverse health effects in e-cigarettes were vomiting, nausea and eye irritation.

The bottom line is users of electronic cigarettes need to be aware that e-cigarettes have the potential to cause acute adverse health effects and represent an emerging public health concern. Keep e-cigarettes away from children.

Employees are bound with tape in O'Reilly robbery

Police are searching for two white men, reward is possible

By Shelley Spillman
News Editor

Just before 10 p.m. Monday, Lawrenceburg Police responded to an armed robbery at O'Reilly Auto Parts at 1191 Glensboro Road.

Trooper Matt Rogers, Detective Jeremy Cornish, Officer Joe Massey and Officer James Dunn arrived at the scene. They discovered that two white males dressed in dark clothing entered the store just before closing.

According to a Lawrenceburg Police Department press release, one male presented a handgun and forced employees to hand over the store's cash. The employees were then forced to the rear of the store where their hands and legs were bound with industrial tape.

Cornish said none of the employees were injured.

The Mercer County Sheriff's Office also assisted with their canine and searched the area.

"This is very odd for our town," Cornish said.

As the heroin problem in area has increased,

Cornish said he has noticed that crime is increasing. He said he suspects that the robbery was "drug fueled."

The incident is still under investigation.

Anyone with any information is asked to contact the Lawrenceburg Police Department at 502.839.5125. There might be a reward for information leading to an arrest.

This is very odd for our town.

American Legion adds $1,000 to Wounded Warriors fund

The American Legion and Auxiliary held their Spring Conference at Florence April 11-12. Eight junior and six senior members attended from Lawrenceburg.

Each year, the Department of Kentucky Auxiliary president chooses a special fund-raiser project for Kentucky auxiliary members. This year, it's the Wounded Warriors Transition Housing Program.

Unit 34 donated $1,000 to the project plus a donation to the Children and Youth Program.

Unit 34 took a gift basket for the department president's room. The basket was filled and decorated by Betty Butler. Unit 34 rented a banquet room and provided lunch for all past department presidents. Pam Brough and Shirley Thornberry took care of getting food with Nettie Halvorson's assistance setting up and clean-up later.

Unit 34 Pres. Betty Butler is also the department chaplain. Junior Chair Chrisie Halvorson and Robin Browning attended and transported junior members. Pam Brough is leadership chair and serves on the Distinguished Guest Committee.

Junior members performed a skit for senior members. One junior laid down depicting a fallen soldier. Other juniors lined up behind the soldier and each gave a statistic on soldiers lost in each war. They also presented President Pat with a candle warmer and candle.

Junior members who attended were Janna Halvorson, Annie McDannold, Kaylea Blakeman, Summer Browning, Hannah Drury, Brianna Melton, Maddie Yaden and Sydney Davis.

The American Legion Auxiliary also hosted the annual Community Easter egg hunt with the City of Lawrenceburg April 13 at the American Legion Fairgrounds. More than 8,000 eggs were stuffed by Auxiliary and Beta Club members and a AYCC student.

There were four age groups and one for special needs children. Each child received a free picture with Mr. and Mrs. Bunny. Punch and lemonade was available to all. Several senior and junior members worked at this event, as well as other volunteers.

County Attorney Lewis is awarded $9,100 KDLA grant to code county ordinances

By Shelley Spillman
 News Editor

The Kentucky Department of Libraries and Archives recently announced that Bobbi Lewis, Anderson County Attorney, received a $9,100 grant to preserve and manage local government records.

Anderson County is one of 51 KDLA grant recipients for the 2014 fiscal year, totaling $1,067,144, according to a Kentucky and Workforce Development Cabinet press release.

Lewis said the grant process was finalized in December 2013. Now that the funds are available, Lewis said the grant will be used to code and compile all of the county's ordinances by subject matter and date order.

American Legal Publishing, a company that specializes in publishing, supplementing and distributing municipal ordinances nationwide, submitted the winning bid for the job and will assist with the codification process.

Lewis said the process will include formatting the material into user friendly titles, chapters and sections, creating one body of current enforceable law.

"The codification will promote efficiency and ease of use by government and the public," Lewis said. "(This) will allow the county to have, in addition to a topic accessible compilation, an electronic copy which can be viewed online."

Steven Sims makes the dean's list at Centre College

Tobacco plant quiz answer

Last week's tobacco plant quiz submitted Gilbert Mathis can be worked by using advanced mathematics but here is the solution by using barnyard logic, he tells us.

Assuming the field is square there would be (square root of 36,600) 60 rows in the field and 60 plants in each row.

By multiplying 3.5 feet x 60 one would get 2,100 feet, which would be both the length and width of the field.

Dividing 2,100 by 3 feet (the new distance the plants are spaced) one would get 70, which would be both the new number of rows and the new number of plants per row.

70 rows x 70 plants per row equal 4,900 plants in the field when planted 3 feet apart.

Several readers got this answer by one method or another, while others came up with 2880, 4200, 4800 or 6000.

Those who hit the answer right on the dot were Elijah Leathers Sinai; Mary L. Shouse Salvisa; Walker Gretter, Linden Drive; Michael Puckett, Louisville; R.J. Wooldridge, Court Street; Cecil Cook, South Main; Jack Sayre, Stanford; and Mrs. Bernice Bryant who got up at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning to work on it and George Gortney.

Granny and her Wildcat

An Anderson County native, Ann Green Smith, designed the University of Kentucky Wildcat suit worn by Dean Paris in 1964.

Smith has since moved to Ohio.

The daughter of Mick and Virginia Green began her career through her 4-H activities in Anderson County, according to her daughter-in-law Mrs. James R. "Buddy" Smith of Graefenburg Road.

Ann Smith had designed the UK mascot for several years and when it needed new hands or feet or something she would always send new ones via her granddaughter, Annette, who attended UK. Everyone believed it when she told her fellow classmates "My grandmother made that Wildcat outfit."

15 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, April 28, 1999

Andrea Deatherage and Darnell Pleasant were honored as Citizens of the month for actions they took to save Deatherages' nephew, Zach Ashburn, 5, when he was attacked by the family dog.

Zach received 37 stitches and 20 staples to close the wounds.

Deatherage was planting flowers and Zach was in the back of the yard.

Pleasant, who was sitting in his favorite spot at his house located at the corner of Maple and Waterfill could see Zach in the back yard. "I saw the kid get into the dog's space," Pleasant said. "The dog knocked him down and went for his neck."

Pleasant started yelling at the dog and the tone in his voice brought Zach's aunt from the front of the house, who ran 150 feet to the dog pen, all the while screaming at the dog. Yelling, Pleasant came through several back yards to get to the Deatherage residence. The yelling and screaming startled the dog, causing the dog to release his hold on the back of boy's neck.

Zach was in the hospital for four days. When he was released from the hospital, he took Pleasant a big thank you card. His aunt wrote a note of thanks from the whole family and Zach signed his name himself.

"God put Darnell there for a reason," Etheridge said.

The dog was raised by the Etheridge's from a pup. After 10 days in quarantine to check for rabies, the dog was put to sleep.

Retires

Geraldine Peyton retired after 39 years of service at Kentucky Overall Service.

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness... but what about joy

When you read the Bible, you are reading the very Word of God. Every word of it is "God-breathed" (2 Timothy 3:16), making it inerrant, infallible and the final authority in all matters of faith and practice.

Yet, while all scripture is authoritative, not every portion of scripture is equally applicable to every situation.

That is why I love the book of Psalms so much. With 150 divinely inspired songs, there is always one that speaks to the current circumstance of the child of God.

Whether that situation is one of praise or pain, confusion or confidence, the Psalms speak to the heart of the matter.

It was U2 front man Bono who said of the Psalms, "What's so powerful about the Psalms are, as well as they're being gospel and songs of praise, they are also the blues."

While he might be speaking as a musician rather than a theologian, he is nonetheless correct. The Psalms are charged with effective language. They deal with feelings and desires and what these feelings are rooted in.

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

Consider Psalm 16. Take a moment and read and reflect on it. It begins with the words, "Preserve me, O God, for I take refuge in You." It ends with the proclamation, "You will make known to me the path of life; In Your presence is fullness of joy; In Your right hand there are pleasures forever."

The whole of the psalm paints a contrast between those who find delight in God and those who find sorrow in chasing other gods. Basically, if you have a lack of joy, it is largely grounded in when we lack what we desire.

The American dream is "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Nothing is said about joy.

Happiness might be a pursuit but joy is a present. What I mean is joy is something you receive from someone else, that someone being God. While happiness is often based on our possessions, joy is based on a person, that person being Jesus Christ.

The Christian finds his good in God and His people (v.2-3) while the unbeliever finds sorrow in their worldly pursuits (v.4). When you pursue worldly happiness to the neglect of heavenly joy, you will find neither.

What are you pursuing? Is it health, wealth, relationships, education, knowledge, or fame?

How's that working out for you?

How happy are you with all you have amassed? Did that degree bring contentment? Did that sports car bring peace? Did that career bring fulfillment?

These things are not inherently wrong. However, a misplaced emphasis on the transitory will lead you down a path of idolatry that will only end in sorrow and separation from God (Revelation 22:15).

On the contrary, when our desires are rooted in the person of Jesus Christ, the temporary no longer takes center stage. Rather, they become blessings that are meant to be used for his glory.

When we have true joy, we learn that happiness is not based in the finite but the infinite.

When we learn to hold all things loosely before the Lord, except for the Lord Himself, claiming God from God, true happiness, peace and contentment - joy - will follow.

If you still haven't found what you are looking for (thanks again Bono), it might be you don't know what to look for.

Let me implore you to turn from your sin and toward Jesus. Believe in the Gospel and experience the heart of the Psalms - the heart of the child of God - crying out, whether in praise or in pain, to their Heavenly Father.

Find your delight in Him.

CASA BOOTING UP!

CASA of the Bluegrass hosted its 3rd Annual Boot Drive April 19. Lawrenceburg Junior Fire Fighters and CASA mascots helped members of the Anderson County Ad Hoc Committee raise money to help CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocate) provide a voice in court for children who are "in the system" because of abuse and neglect. Shown are, from left, Austin Taylor, Grace Hume, Katherine Read and Hannah Hume. Absent are CASA Mascots Natalie Nichols and Carter Smith. There are currently 63 children in Anderson County who have a Court Appointed Special Advocate working on their behalf by being a voice for them in court. Because there are not enough Anderson County volunteers, there are 25 waiting for a CASA. To volunteer, contact CASA of the Bluegrass at P.O. Box 193, Lawrenceburg KY 40342 or call 502.604.3414.

Ashley Robe is preparing for her future through an educational program with Ale-8-One Bottling Company.

Salvisa teen expands education through job at Ale 8 bottling plant

Ashley Robe, a Salvisa native and senior at Eastern Kentucky University, prepares for the future through cooperative education with Ale-8-One Bottling Company.

Robe, the daughter of, Mike and Melissa Robe, joined the team in August 2013. She works events around Kentucky where she gets to know Ale-8-One fans and introduces Kentucky's Soft Drink to those who have never tried it.

"I found out about the position at Ale-8-One and I knew without a doubt that I wanted to become part of this team," said Robe. "Being able to use my communication skills while communicating with people about the Kentucky Proud product for the purpose of helping promote the brand is something that I am thoroughly passionate about."

Among Robe's favorite events are tailgating at football games.

"We came in contact with so many Ale-8 fans and also introduced the product and the freeze machine to a lot of new people," said Robe.

Robe's supervisor, Andrew Pulliam, has found her skills to be a benefit to the team and her growth has been rewarded with additional responsibilities within the team.

"Ashley has been a great addition to our event team," said Pulliam. "She has gone above and beyond the call of duty to help out when needed. Her work has shown true dedication to our family-owned business and we have given her more responsibilities as our event team has become increasingly busy throughout the year."

While Robe is still weighing her post-graduation options, she said that her job with the Ale-8-One event team has prepared her for a future in marketing.

"I know once I move on from this company, if I do, I want to find another organization in which I have passion for and that I can market their product with such ease as I can do with Ale-8-One," said Robe.

Ale-8-One, a Kentucky Proud product, is Kentucky's only soft drink. Ale-8-One has been family owned and bottled in Winchester, KY since 1926. Today, the company is run by Fielding Rogers, great-great-nephew of founder G.L. Wainscott.

Tornado

Avenstoke.

Estimates put the damage at nearly $500,000, a massive sum in 1974. Ida Morrow, C.D. Camic, Clifton Camic and Kenneth E. Perry suffered the greatest losses.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Camic and Hallie Sanders were injured during the storm, The News reported, but there were no deaths in Anderson County.

Many witnesses saw the impending storm. Mrs. Eugene Corley said that her house trembled and an ashtray on an end table was almost shaken off as funnel-shaped clouds passed over.

Kelly New was in his truck when a tornado approached. He could see falling rock all around him and the windows of his truck were shattered.

Mrs. Tom Gentry said she watched the winds pick up a large tractor-trailer and turn it over like a "toothpick" on an overpass bridge, The News reported.

Elsewhere in Kentucky, large portions of Campbellsburg were destroyed and Brandenburg was nearly erased. Horse barns were leveled and a portion of Freedom Hall at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center was demolished in Louisville.

Brandenburg suffered the heaviest loss of life - 31 - and nearby

What is an F5 tornado?

Tornadoes are classified by the potential damage they could cause

Scale	MPH Avg.	Potential Damage
F0	40-73	Light damage.
F1	74-112	Moderate damage.
F2	113-157	Significant damage.
F3	158-206	Severe damage.
F4	207-260	Devastating damage.
F5	261-318	Incredible damage.

F5 tornadoes can lift strong frame houses off foundations and carry them considerable distances to disintegrate. Automobile sized missiles fly through the air in excess of 110 yards. Trees can be debarked. Steel reinforced concrete structures can be badly damaged.

Franklin, Nelson, Boyle and Jefferson counties contributed to Kentucky's 71 deaths.

Anderson County Public Safety Director Bart Powell was 14 years old in 1974. He remembers seeing the destruction in Fayette County as he rode around with his father, who was a police officer.

Fast forward 40 years and Powell is now a person responsible for warning citizens when destructive weather is headed their way.

Times have changed, for sure.

"Back then, there was no Weather Channel, no Doppler Radar, no Internet or iPhones to get automatic warnings," said Powell. "We use a code red reverse call system when we're tracking super cells producing tornadoes. We're really diligent with it, particularly during sleeping hours."

Powell said there are apps, such as MyRadar and Weather Underground, that give immediate weather updates but Anderson County's Emergency Management team has a database of local phone numbers and a recorded message can be sent to geographic areas or county-wide warning citizens of impending danger. Mobile phone users can be added to the list by following the CodeRed link at the bottom of the City of Lawrenceburg's Web site - www.lawrenceburgky.org - or by calling 911 dispatch at 502.839.5125.

Anderson County is also covered by four tornado sirens with a fifth one on the way.

Currently, sirens are located at:

Anderson County Fire Station #2 at the crossroads of Alton Road and Alton Station Road.

Crossroads of Versailles Road and Hilltop Drive in Lawrenceburg.

Lawrenceburg Fire Station #2 at the crossroads of Carlton Road and Aspen Drive.

Cora Houchin's mobile home was blown off its foundation and turned upside down in the tornado onslaught of April 3-4 in 1974. This photo from the April 11, 1974 issue of The Anderson News shows the devastation.

Walmart located at 1000 Bypass North in Lawrenceburg.

A fifth siren will soon stand in front of Robert B. Turner Elementary School at 1411 Fox Creek Road in Lawrenceburg.

The sirens are specifically designed as an outdoor warning system, not for citizens to hear in their homes, Powell explained.

"We use propagation maps to determine locations to cover as much of the area as possible," he said. "Our primary concern is where the most people would be outside. This fifth one, for example, is near a school and a golf course. The one at Walmart is near schools and the county park."

Powell said the sirens only activate if a tornado is seen visually or is picked up by Doppler Radar. When it sounds, it means seek shelter immediately.

Local Emergency Management has multiple radar sites and EMS Major and Emergency Management Deputy Director John Shuttlesworth and IT Specialist Bob Hardin have received extensive training to know when citizens should be warned.

One program used by the team is Threat Net, which can track a rotation down to a street corner, Powell said.

Powell, who is also the Emergency Management Director for Lawrenceburg and Anderson County, has two other deputies - Anderson County Fire Chief Mike Barnes and Lawrenceburg Fire Chief Bobby Hume. Powell said countywide severe weather warning is a joint city/county program.

And while the team keeps a constant vigil to protect the community, Powell said there is one rule of thumb when it comes self-protection. Always have smoke detectors, carbon monoxide detectors and a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration radio, which typically has a hand crank for additional back-up, that broadcasts National Weather Service warnings, watches, forecasts and other hazard information 24 hours a day. They can be purchased in local stores.

Aitken

Gill said she had no idea about the Woodford County charges until shortly after giving the Anderson County Sheriff's Office a record of questionable checking account transactions.

"It's shocking that people were aware of the charges and possibly that she was our treasurer and we weren't informed," Gill said.

In fact, Gill said, they had no reason to question Aitken's integrity.

She had been a volunteer with Home at Last Inc. shortly after the non-profit was founded in May 1997 and acted as treasurer since 2010.

She also had a great reputation as animal advocate from veterinarians she worked with in Anderson County.

Everyone associated with Home at Last Inc. is a volunteer and, she said, Aitken had volunteered under five previous presidents for the organization.

To her knowledge, Gill said she didn't think a background check had been conducted on Aitkens prior to her involvement with Home at Last Inc.

"We were beyond shocked. We had nothing but glowing references for her," Gill said. "There were multiple people who trusted and respected her and we were part of that group."

Though Home at Last Inc. is a small non-profit that runs solely off of donations, Gill said they've been through rough economic times before and will continue to provide excellent care for the shelter animals.

"I'm glad we caught this but it goes without saying that I wish we had caught it sooner," Gill said. "Background checks seem like a sensible idea in the future."

Aitken scheduled for arraignment on May 20.

‘He really knows his stuff’

Sometime during Saturday’s Blue-White spring football game, Freddie Maggard took to Twitter to let the world know about his newest experience.

“Tom is a legend. This is not easy at all. Everything happens fast and then on to next play,” the Anderson County resident and former University of Kentucky quarterback tweeted out.

“This” happened to be Maggard’s first gig as a game analyst. He was working on the UK football radio broadcast with long-time play-by-play man Tom Leach and sideline reporter Dick Gabriel as the Wildcats completed their second spring practice under Coach Mark Stoops.

From all indications, the UK running backs and the 35,117 fans that made it to the game were not the only ones drawing rave reviews. Maggard did just fine.

“There were times I would be listening to (Leach) call the game and I thought I was home listening to it on the radio. Then he would look at me like, ‘Say something.’” Maggard laughed.

Apparently what he said was very good.

Full disclosure: I did not attempt to listen to the broadcast while working the game. I probably should have.

“He did a great job,” said Gabriel, who has to be on top of what happens on the field and in the broadcast booth. “He really knows his stuff. This game moved at a faster pace than a regular game, but he didn’t step on Tom. He made insightful comments.”

For now, the radio work was a one-time thing, but the Harlan County native’s blood runs Blue 365 days a year. He plans to be at every home game and travel to LSU this fall.

And he’s sold on Stoops’ performance in Lexington despite finishing just 2-10 in his first go-round.

“He has done a tremendous job,” says Maggard, who coached the Wildcats during the coaching tenures of Jerry Claiborne and Bill Curry. “He is a solid, proven recruiter. He has discipline. The kids also have fun. You have to have the fun moments.”

“He is the perfect man for the job.”

Saturday, the small steps Stoops has made turned into big gainers by a group of running backs that Maggard believes are the best Kentucky has had in many years. Granted, the big guys – Jo Jo Kemp (131 all-purpose yards) and Nebraska transfer Braylon Heard (55 yards) – were running against the Wildcats’ second team defense. Josh Clemons’ 93 yards were split between the two teams.

Still, Maggard says, “I see some future pros in this backfield.”

And that, Maggard believes, goes back to how Stoops has attacked the task of rebuilding Kentucky football. “You have to recruit and develop,” Maggard says of Stoops. “They have recruited better players than the ones when they got here. And they have developed the players that were here.”

Big-time quarterback Drew Barker, who played his final high school game on the Anderson County field back in November, was ranked as one of the nation’s 10 best at his position. Barker picked UK over Steve Spurrier and South Carolina. He finished high school in December and went through spring drills.

He was only 7-for-19 for 74 yards Saturday but made some splendid throws, including a 30-yard beauty to Demarco Robinson for a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Barker gave a few glimpses of what the fuss was about.

A decade ago, Barker most likely would not have been wearing Blue and White.

“There was no way,” Maggard said of the former prospects of a Barker ending up in Lexington. “But Coach Stoops came in here and was very brave in saying, ‘We are going to get the best players in Kentucky.’ He wouldn’t back down from anybody.”

It’s reminiscent of a key part of the formula Claiborne used to return

Get-well wins better than get-well cards for rising Anderson track

Coach in hospital, ‘Cats record wins

By John Herndon

There are get-well cards and then there are get-well wins.

Anderson County track and field believed Coach Keith Brown would much rather have the latter and delivered.

The Bearcat boys posted impressive victories in the Boyle County Invitational and the Danville All-Comers meets last week, perhaps the best get-well wishes the coach could receive.

Brown, a veteran coach who is in his first year guiding the Anderson program, spent some time at Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville after developing an infection resulting from a broken bone in his foot and missed both of the meets.

Brown is now home and is expected to resume his coaching duties soon, according to Anderson assistant coach Stephanie Moninger.

“The kids have been asking about Coach Brown,” Moninger said. “I have told them what has been going on and they wish him a speedy recovery. We got a card and all of the kids signed it for him. The night we were in Danville (for the all-comers meet), they wanted to have the bus stop by the hospital, but I thought that would be a little too much noise for one hospital to have to put up with!”

Instead, the Bearcats gave some of their best performances of the year, winning the eight-team Danville All-Comers in convincing fashion last Tuesday, then returning to Danville to win the Boyle Invitational across town Friday.

In that one, Anderson outpointed the host school, 134-122, for one of the Shelby wins in wild ending

Moore’s break makes Bearcats sore

SHELBYVILLE – If it works, you are a genius. If not, well, let’s just say the fan commentary would not be kind.

Shelby County baseball coach Bart Roettger was a genius last Thursday. Well, sort of.

Roettger’s Rockets scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat Anderson County in a 30th District game that most likely will be repeated in tournament play next month. It was how Shelby did it that made Roettger look like a riverboat gambler making a desperate move.

Again, sort of.

With Anderson clinging to a 3-2 lead and the bases loaded and two outs, Shelby’s Michael Gammon, the Rockets’ No. 5 hitter, was looking at a 1-2 count from Anderson lefty Brandon Eliadis. After Gammon fouled two more pitches off, Shelby’s Kipp Moore broke from third, as if to steal home.

Gammon made contact but hit a soft dribbler in front of the mound. Eliadis looked at Moore, hesitated, then overthrew first baseman Max

The Anderson County boys’ lacrosse team rallied from a 4-1 first quarter deficit to defeat Greenwood, 8-7, Saturday in Bowling Green.

Caleb Shepherd took a pass from Dillon Harrod to score the winning goal in sudden death overtime.

Anderson County, which was without three starters due to injuries or personal reasons, cut the lead to 5-3 by halftime, then used three goals in a four-minute span of the fourth quarter to go in front, 7-6.

Greenwood, however, tied things inside the final minute when Anderson was short-handed with two players in the penalty box at that point.

In the overtime, Greenwood won the face off, but Anderson County long-stick defenseman Cody Dillow forced a turnover leading to the game-winner.

Harrod is leading the state in scoring, which is a total of goals and assists, according to Anderson coach Chris Harrod. He is ranked 41st in the nation, according to the coach, on MaxPreps.com’s premium portion of its website.

Coach Harrod also said Shepherd is ranked third in the state in ground ball

Kentucky to respectability in the 1980s.

"Coach Claiborne locked down the state," Maggard recalled. "The best players in the state came to UK."

It's begun to happen again with talents like Ryan Timmons, Jason Hatcher, Matt Elam and Barker all picking UK over perennial powers.

"I have a lot of friends throughout the Southeastern Conference," Maggard said. "They love Mark Stoops. SEC fans were mad at Kentucky for not taking football seriously, to be honest with you. You have to have the commitment."

With the commitment in coaching salaries and facility upgrades UK football looks to be on the way up.

But building Kentucky football is even tougher than working in the broadcast booth. Maggard would not commit to a prediction for 2015.

"I just want to see improvement, which I have seen today," Maggard said as we got ready to leave Commonwealth Stadium. "I am not going to put a number out there because it is so hard to predict."

But Maggard says one thing is very apparent.

"This team is much better than last year."

program's biggest wins in recent years. The Anderson girls finished second at Danville and third at Boyle, which took first at both meets. Casey County, which did not compete at Danville, took second in the Boyle Invitational.

"The boys were very happy," Moninger said of the Boyle meet. "We knew with about three events to go that we had a shot at winning. With the 3200 (-meter run) and the 4x400 (-meter relay) to go, I told the boys we needed points. Jacob Brumley came in second in the 3200 with a good time even though he was running sick."

Brumley came through with a 10:56.35, nearly 14 seconds faster than he had run at Danville three days before.

"That gave us eight points," Moninger said. "I knew we had won then because we were 16 points ahead of the second place team (Boyle County). I told the 4x400 boys to run for a personal record time after that and they did with a 3:37.66, good enough for a third-place finish."

The Bearcats got 18 points out of the 400-meter dash as Casey Moninger and Ethan Woodrow placed first and second. "Casey came out with a (Boyle County's Jonathan Carman) neck-and-neck until the last 50 meters," Coach Moninger said. "Casey pulled away with a great run and his second-fastest 400 time. What was so great about that race was Ethan Woodrow. He came out of nowhere to a strong second-place finish at 52.03, which was a personal record for him."

Moninger won at 51.62, more than a full second better than his finish at Danville, but Woodrow shaved nearly four seconds off his time, an amazing improvement from one race to the next.

The Bearcat boys were strong in the field events with Tyson Yett taking the high jump (6-04.00) and triple jump (44-00.00) while Connor Stockton (shot put), Brayden Russell (high jump) and Ty Gilkison (pole vault) all placed second in their events.

Yett had the same finishes at Danville but Stockton and Gilkison won their events last Tuesday.

Connor Duncan was first at Boyle in the 300-meter hurdles and second at 110 meters for another strong day. He had the same finishes at Danville.

"Tyson had a strong showing in the triple jump with a personal record of 44 feet and a new school record. He beat his previous school record by two inches.

"Brayden Russell has been a great new addition to the track team this year. He finished second in the high jump at 6-02, so that gave us another 18 points, team-wise."

On the girls' side, freshman Alorra Sims led Anderson in both meets with two first-place finishes in both meets. Sims won the 100-meter hurdles and triple jump at Boyle, but took the long jump and triple jump three days earlier. She was second in the long jump at Boyle and placed second in the 100-meter dash and the 300-meter hurdles at Danville.

Eighth-grader Elle Buser was also very strong, winning the 400-meter dash at both events with nearly identical times. She was .06 faster at Boyle.

Anderson also got strong performances from Trulee Gilkison, second in the pole vault in both meets.

The Anderson teams will be participating in the Central Kentucky Conference meet Friday at East Jessamine High School.

BEARCATS

Crabtree, allowing Moore and Kyler Dugle, who had been on second base, to score.

Roettger immediately looked like a diamond Einstein.

But the Shelby coach claims he had little to do with the play.

"(Moore) saw Eliadis move to the windup and took advantage of it," Roettger said. "I wish I could say I called that but it was all Kipper."

Regardless of who made the call, Anderson coach L.W. Barnes tipped his hat to the Bearcats' old rival. "It was a gutsy play by them and we didn't make the play," he said.

There could have been little doubt the Bearcats were flummoxed by Moore's daring. "I think it did," Barnes said. "It impacted (Eliadis). He had all the time in the world. He rushed his throw to first."

And Roettger said it was vintage Moore, who has signed to play baseball at Murray State. "I have been coaching over 18 years and Kipp Moore is one of the best base stealers I have ever seen. I essentially give him the green light in any circumstance."

Thursday, Moore had pitched six innings before giving way to David Fitzgerald, who got the win, in the seventh. He reached base three times and stole a base. He was caught stealing in the fifth.

There can also be little doubt that the final play overshadowed a stellar pitching performance from Eliadis and Anderson starter Conor Cotton.

Cotton, a senior right-hander, saw the first three Shelby hitters reach base and gave up a pair of unearned runs in the first. He settled down to give up only one more hit through five innings. Eliadis retired the Rockets in order in the sixth, but had to battle through the seventh.

He appeared to have things under control after getting ahead of Gammon.

"The worst thing is Brandon is one of those guys who just gets it done," Barnes said. "I just hate it for him and I hate it for the boys."

Cotton and Eliadis combined to strike out eight and gave up just five hits. The Anderson tandem walked six, however.

"They both pitched well enough to win," Barnes said. "Conor did a great job on the hill," Barnes said.

Shelby plated two runs in the first, but Anderson kept chipping away, finally breaking through in the fourth when Cotton singled, then scored on Brice Stockton's single.

Anderson, however, saw a run get away in the fourth when Eliadis was cut down at the plate on a perfect throw from left-fielder Dillon Boone on Cotton's hit.

Barnes took the blame for that one. "He didn't get a real good jump on the ball and I should have held him at third," Barnes said. "I was too aggressive and it cost us a run. That was a bad call on my part.

Anderson finally went up in the sixth with Josh Brown's one-out double driving in John Paul Garmon, running for Lucas Durr, who had walked. Brown came around when Brice Stockton reached as Shelby botched a possible double play.

It only made the final at-bat more dramatic.

"Just another typical Shelby County-Anderson County matchup, huh?" said Roettger, who nominated Barnes for the Kentucky High School Baseball Hall of Fame.

Unless Anderson upset Collins in a big way in a game that was scheduled for Tuesday night, the teams will play again in the first round of the district tournament.

"It will be a war, no matter what happens," Barnes said. "I don't care if we get the one-, two-, or three-seed. It will be a rough first-round game and it will be a doozy no matter what.

"That's what makes this rivalry fun," Roettger added. "Not only do our coaching staffs like each other, but when it's time to play the game, both teams play every Shelby County-Anderson game like it was for a regional championship."

And with a little luck and some flair from both teams, that match-up could also happen.

Riley, White named All SIAC

The Kentucky State University men's golf team took the championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament last Wednesday.

The Thorobreds shot a three-day total of 991 at the Woodward Golf and Country Club in Bessemer, Ala.

Three Anderson County High School graduates - Dylan Riley, Joseph White and Gabe McMichael - are members of the Kentucky State team.

Kentucky State trailed Morehouse by one stroke heading into the final day of the tournament but shot a combined 338 to Morehouse's 344 on the final day of action.

White, who shot a 74/82/79 for a 235 total, led the Thorobreds and finished tied for third place overall.

Riley recovered from a first-round 91 to shoot 251 (91/75/85) while McMichael finished with a 259 (90/83/86) to round out the Kentucky State scoring.

Dylan Riley, a senior, was named first team All-SIAC last week. White was named All-SIAC second team for the season and was selected to the conference all-tournament team.

Bearcat basketball: Looking back, looking ahead

Drury says he will return for 2014-15 season

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It has been two months since that night Collins ended the Anderson County boys' basketball season in the 30th District tournament opener. The Bearcats fought and battled, but ultimately, Collins just had too many weapons for a depleted Anderson team to overcome.

But high school sports are designed, in part, to teach life lessons. One of those lessons Anderson County should have learned in 2013-14 is that life, like basketball, does not always deliver a stacked hand, or even what one would think is a fair hand.

Many teams experienced disruption when rugged winter weather canceled games and practices. But the virtually equal effect of the snow and ice - every team in the state was in the same boat - gave way to a list of issues that kept Anderson from becoming the team that most observers felt would at least challenge for the Eighth Region championship when pre-season started in October.

Instead, Anderson finished with a 13-9 record and was eliminated in the first round of post-season play for the second time since 2001.

"The variable we dealt with this year was something I have never dealt with," Anderson coach Glen Drury said recently. "We had injury, illness, ineligibility (a couple of players had to sit out games after being ejected) and then all the snow. We didn't have the team together."

Anderson was hovering around .500 when the Bearcats went on a six-game tear. In the district tournament, however, the Bearcats were short-handed again with leading rebounder and top inside defender Ross Cox out due to a bout with mononucleosis.

"I don't know if we could have beaten Collins (with Cox)," Drury said of the regional favorite when the tournament season began, "but we would have liked our chances a lot better."

"We had worked on our game plan (for the Collins opener) for weeks. We were scheduled to play on Tuesday, but on Sunday, we find out that Cox has mono. We had to revamp everything quickly."

Things like that happened to Anderson so many times the Drury could only come up with a grin of amazement at what happened when the Bearcats traveled to Spencer County on Jan. 28.

The Bearcats were a solid favorite, but had to play without second-leading scorer Christian Estes, when he came down with a case of chicken pox.

"I have been coaching since 1981-82 (at Berea College) and I have never heard of a kid missing a game because of chicken pox at age 18," Drury said. "We had a major game and didn't have one of our better players."

Spencer prevailed, 80-74.

Still, Drury felt his team improved over the season.

Anderson should be good in 2014-15. The Bearcats could be very good. There will be some gaping holes, such as Estes and Cox being gone. Starters Luke Mann and Zach Freeman and reserve Darius Harvey graduate.

But leading scorer Austin Cummins returns and the Bearcats should have a wealth of young talent. They figure to be a factor in the Eighth Region race.

"We are going to be pretty good," Drury said. "It might take a while, but we have some talent. We will be young. The variables will be luck."

"We see some kids that can develop into a nice team."

Eighth-graders Cobe Penny and Gunnar Gillis were starting on the junior varsity by season's end and will push to be in the first five on the varsity next year.

The Anderson JV went 12-6 while the freshman team was 13-0. Those numbers say the Bearcats could be a force again in March 2015.

"Shelby County and Simon Kenton will be very strong," Drury said of next year's regional race. "After that, there are 6-7 teams that could be there. We are one of them."

Drury says he will be back

For several years, speculation has centered on whether Drury, who has been head coach at Anderson since the 1987-88 season, and is closing in on 500 wins, will return.

"I have no reason not to come back," said Drury, who has a 470-300 record as a head coach, all at Anderson County or Western Anderson. "I still enjoy the game."

Lady Bearcat softball rolls past Shelby, Spencer

Anderson closes in on district's top seed

By John Herndon

The Anderson County softball team continued its winning ways Thursday with a 6-1 win over Shelby County at the Shelby County Athletic Complex.

The Lady Bearcats extended their winning streak to nine games and had won 12 of 13 heading into Tuesday's scheduled game at East Jessamine. Most importantly, Anderson improved to 5-0 in district play and could clinch the 30th District Tournament's top seed with a win at Collins on May 6, regardless of what else happens in the district.

Anderson, ranked 18th in the latest statewide poll, scored three times in the top of the sixth inning to put things away. Corrin Robinson, who smacked two doubles and drove in two runs, got the big hit in the inning.

Mia Aldridge also stroked a double with an RBI while freshman Sammy Rogers, pressed into service when Molly Burkhead experienced a tight back, went 2-for-2 at the plate.

Sophomore Ally Moore got the win, scattering six hits but giving up just one run. She struck out six in the complete game performance.

Anderson had rolled past Shelby, 9-0, in the season-opener a month earlier.

"We did not play well," said Anderson coach Brent Aldridge. "Several of the girls had prom (over the) weekend and their minds were elsewhere."

Last Monday, Anderson got another district win with an 11-1 five-inning pasting of Spencer County in Taylorsville.

Bailey Curry and Autum Beasley led the Anderson attack. Curry went 2-for-3 with a home run and three RBIs while Beasley drove in four runs, going 3-for-3 on the day. Winning pitcher Mia Aldridge helped her own cause at the plate, going 2-for-2 with a pair of RBIs.

Mason named as member of Leach All-Resilient Team

By John Herndon

Anderson County High School senior James Mason was honored Thursday night as a member of the TomLeachKy.com All-Resilient Team of Kentucky student-athletes.

The team, which was also sponsored by the Kentucky National Guard, the Kentucky High School Athletic Directors Association and Star Communications, was honored in a ceremony at Papa John's Cardinal Stadium in Louisville.

Mason, a swimmer, was honored for his work in recovering from a completely torn labrum. Information about him on TomLeachKy.com says, "A swimmer with a shoulder injury faces a tough obstacle in bouncing back but James overcame a completely torn labrum to qualify for the regional this season. Last summer, doctors told James he would be out of the pool until the new year but he pushed himself through therapy to return by November's meets. The injury kept him from duplicating the times he had previously posted but by the time of the regional, James was able to post a personal best for the season. James plans to attend Western Kentucky University this fall and will also enlist in the National Guard."

Anderson County swimming coach Karla Phillips said Mason overcame a serious injury and doubts about his ability to return to the pool during the most recent season.

"Before James tore his labrum, he primarily competed in backstroke and distance freestyle events," Phillips said. "After his labrum repair surgery he was limited to only competing in breaststroke (the only stroke that doesn't involve full rotation of the shoulder joint.) He had been told that he would not be able to swim until after the beginning of 2014, but James pushed through his therapy and was able to jump back into practices in November and was back to competing in December. Although the injury prevented James from swimming in certain events and posting the times that he had been able to do before his injury, he still found a way to be a strong competitor. James finished his high school swimming career by placing 11th in the region with a personal best time of 1:10.59 in the 100 breaststroke."

"James was devoted to practices and even though he was unable to do several of the practice sets that I assigned for the team; he always found an alternative method of practicing to keep himself in shape and working on his shoulder. I feel very honored to have coached an athlete that received a special award like this."

Great spring fishing available in nearby lakes

Temple escapes 'elk attack' on Cat Ridge

Spring has finally arrived and with it comes turkey season and some of the best fishing of the year. The air has warmed now and the lake waters of Kentucky are well on their way to those 60 degree temperatures that fire up the largemouth bass and crappie spawns.

I've gotten several reports over the past two to three weeks of good numbers of crappie with some size being caught in Taylorsville and Green River Lakes. Fishermen are using minnows and jigs spider rigged in 10 to 14 feet of water for best results it seems.

According to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Anderson County Park Lake was stocked with 200 channel catfish last week if that's more your fish. The stocked whis-ker fish are reported to weigh in at around one pound each and are stocked hungry. That makes for some easy bank fishing and a lot of fun for the kids so take them out and hook a few fish for supper.

Spring turkey season so far

Kentucky's spring turkey season opened with the thud for the Lilly clan on April 12. For the first time since the opening of the modern spring turkey season back in the early 1990s the Lilly Boys were shut out on opening day. We heard several gobblers sounding off but none of the four of us hunting managed to work one into decent shotgun range.

Luckily for us, my boy Hunter was able to down a nice jake on the second day to help us avoid a shutout on opening weekend. He dropped a nice bird that just happened to wonder into range with three others about lunch time. It would be later that week before I would be able to connect on a decent bird to go with my taters for supper. We're a long ways from limiting out but hope to try them again at every chance in order to fill those tags and bellies with turkey.

The rest of the statewide totals are looking okay. Through April 24 there had been 21,107 birds telechecked thru the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources phone-in system. Logan County down in the Green River Region of the state was leading the way statewide with a harvest of 513 birds so far. Pendleton County was leading the Bluegrass Region in harvested birds with 303. Anderson County had checked 182 bearded birds, Franklin County added 119, Shelby County 214, Spencer County 147, Washington County 265, Nelson County 239 and Mercer County hunter have contributed another 160 birds to the statewide totals.

Elk attack on Cat Ridge Road

Some things you just can't make up. There was somewhat of an "elk attack" on Cat Ridge Road earlier this month. Apparently just because an elk has been harvested in Colorado, field dressed and butchered, brought back to Kentucky, sent to the taxidermist for stuffing and then brought home by the proud hunter does NOT mean the elk cannot attack.

Hunter Lilly took this bird on the family farm on opening weekend of turkey season.

Just ask Brian Temple of Cat Ridge Road just over the Shelby County line.

Brian took a trip to Colorado last fall and connected with a nice 6 x 7 bull elk towards the end of that hunt. After months of waiting for his trophy to be completed by his taxidermist the moment of truth came and the call was received that his elk head was complete and ready of display. Brian picks up his elk mount from the taxidermy shop and proudly heads home with it to his family's newly remodeled abode.

Now for those who don't realize just how big an elk mount with a decent 6 x 7 set of antlers is you may be missing out on some of the story. These things are not small on the hoof or in the house whether whole or in parts. See the picture in this column and you'll see what I mean by the size of these varmints.

Anyway, the moment of truth had arrived and Karen (Brian's wife), in her excitement, couldn't wait for him to hang the beast in her newly remodeled house. (I made that part up and best I can tell there is no truth to her excitement in the matter.)

Brian incorporated his son Will and nephew Logan to help with the hanging of the massive elk head on the wall. Will and Logan's job was to hold the elk head mount steady on the floor while Brian climbs up on a two-foot step ladder to drive the nail into the wall. Once the nail is driven the first attempt at hanging the beast proves undoable due to the nail being placed too high on the wall and the beast's antlers are hitting against the ceiling of the room.

The head full of antlers is then placed back on the floor and steadied by Will and Logan as Brian attempts to remove the nail for relocation. This is where the story takes a bad turn and the "attack of the elk" begins. Brian loses his balance on the small ladder and falls onto the massive pile of antlers.

Thankfully he catches most of his weight but not before one of the 8-inch brow tines enters his upper right abdomen just under his armpit causing a severe puncture wound. The hospital personnel said Brian was very lucky but we know the good Lord was looking out for him.

The brow tine antler that entered Brian's chest cavity from the side barely missed his lung but more importantly a major artery that if severed could have resulted in a much different end to this story.

After x-rays and several stitches Brian was sent home to recuperate and is doing fine. Leigh and I recently paid Brian and Karen a visit to see their newly renovated home and especially (me anyway) to check out Brian's elk mount. He was still happy to have me snap a picture of him and his trophy.

Just goes to prove you not only have to be careful while out hunting and fishing but also when you get home with your harvest.

Quick shots

·Happy Anniversary to Leigh, my lovely wife, who has endured being married to me and putting up with all my hunting and fishing adventures for 25 years now.

·Also Happy Anniversary to my Mom and Dad, Darrell and Sue Lilly. They celebrated 53 years together on April 27th.

·Statewide spring turkey season closes Sunday, May 4 in case you have a tag left.

Take a kid hunting, trapping or fishing soon!

See ya outside!

PUBLIC NOTICE

Anderson County Fiscal Court in conjunction with the Kentucky Association of Counties (KACo), will be accepting bids via a Reverse Online Auction on May 8, 2014 at 3 p.m. Eastern time (2 p.m. Central) for the purchase of road salt for the county road department. For bid participation / registration and specification contact Orbis Online at 210-831-6070 or log onto www.orbisonline.com or contact, Anderson County Fiscal Court at 502-839-3471 or Scott Martin with KACo at 800-264-5226. The Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject / accept any and all bids. Bids will be accepted online only.

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS INSPECTION PERIOD FOR THE 2014 PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Anderson County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 5 through May 19, 2014. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll.

This is the January 1, 2014, assessment on which state, county, library, health, fire, extension, and school taxes for 2014 will be due after September 15, 2014. The PVA office does not set tax rates. Kentucky law requires that property be assessed equally and uniformly, that each parcel of property be inspected for re-assessment at least once every four years, and that the assessment reflect the price the property would bring in a voluntary sale between a willing buyer and willing seller, given a reasonable time on the market. Assessment notices will be sent to property owners by May 5 ONLY if the assessed value has increased.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator, located at 101 Ollie Bowen Court (beside the Courthouse), and may be inspected between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and 8:30 a.m.-12:00 noon on Saturdays (by appointment).

Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference may be held prior to or during the inspection period.

Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals.

The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property.

The appeal must be filed with the county clerk's office no later than May 20.

A taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated representative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.
